

*Why diversity matters:
examples in disease ecology*

Matthew T. Milholland is a postdoctoral fellow with The University of Maryland and USDA-ARS researching landscape-level efficacy of IPM treatments against Lyme Borreliosis. His work considers how biodiversity and urban development relate to zoonotic systems.

Matthew T. Milholland

Environmental Science and Policy Seminar Series

Thursday, November 7, 2019

3:00-4:00pm

in Exploratory 3301

COMPLIMENTARY PIZZA AND DRINKS WILL BE SERVED